

Teaching Assistant Positions

Fall/Winter 2017

Posting date: July 11, 2017

Closing date: July 24, 2017

The Faculty of Law, Queen's University requests applications from suitably qualified graduate or J.D. students interested in teaching assistant positions for the following courses:

Law 201 Introduction to Canadian Law (Blended) (Fall & Winter)

An introduction to Canadian law and the legal system: legal processes and institutions, principles of legal reasoning and approaches to the analysis of law. Students will learn about the law governing relationships between individuals and between individuals and the state. Taught by law professors, with guest lecturers. Enrollment for the online course is expected to be 320 +.

Law 201 Introduction to Canadian Law (Online) (Fall & Winter)

An introduction to Canadian law and the legal system: legal processes and institutions, principles of legal reasoning and approaches to the analysis of law. Students will learn about the law governing relationships between individuals and between individuals and the state. Taught by law professors, with guest lecturers. Enrollment for the online course is 200 +.

Law 202 Aboriginal Law (Online) (Fall)

Aboriginal Law is an undergraduate survey course of Aboriginal law. Reconciliation between the Canadian state and the Aboriginal peoples of Canada is a central concern of Canadian law in the 21st century, one that reaches into every sector of Canadian society. Resource development, environmental regulation, the criminal justice system, constitutional politics, international relations, intellectual property rights, social welfare policy, cultural development, health care services, education, and language policy are only some of the areas where an understanding of the law relating to Aboriginal peoples has become an urgent necessity. Enrollment is expected to be 80 +.

Law 203 Workplace Law (Online) (Winter)

Workplace Law will introduce students to the various legal regimes that regulate work relations: the common law regime; the regulatory regime which includes employment standards, health and safety rules, and human rights; and the collective bargaining regime that applies to unionized workplaces. Students will understand that the law of work is a dynamic area, constantly affected by economic, historical, political and global forces. Enrollment is expected to be 80 +.

Law 204 Corporate Law (Online) (Fall)

Corporate Law is intended to give students an introduction to corporate law, with a primary focus on the creation, structure and animus of the corporation. As we move to a highly fluid, dynamic, global and entrepreneurial business environment, many students will be seeking opportunities to start or participate in new ventures, and the proposed course will be an invaluable addition to the knowledge they will need to be successful. The course will provide students with an understanding of business associations, securities regulation and banking, as well as examining sources of business regulation. Enrollment is expected to be 80 +.

Applicants are required to have expertise in the field relevant to the course and excellent interpersonal skills. These teaching assistantships are for the support of online courses. Some training and preparation is needed before the start of the course. Candidates must be prepared to work outside the regular 9-5 work week, and have access to the internet and a computer that meets minimum requirements. Experience with learning management systems (e.g. OnQ) and video-conferencing software (e.g. Adobe Connect) would be an asset.
