RECONCILIATION ON BAY STREET CONFERENCE

Saturday, February 2, 2019 from 10:00am to 7:00pm

On February 2, 2019 the Reconciliation on Bay St. Conference will bring together 100 students from Queen's Law and the Smith School of Business to engage with experts in conversations around economic reconciliation on Queen's campus - join us for the day!

This conference is the first of its kind at Queen's; it will bring together Indigenous and non-Indigenous, business and law students to engage in discussions with experts about economic Reconciliation and the roles that we, as future lawyers and business leaders, must play in that process.

The event will begin with an opening ceremony conducted by local leaders and Elders. There will then be a showing of the Reconciliation on Bay Street documentary, which has inspired this conference.

Following the film, we will host a Q&A panel with the filmmaker and Queen's Law alumnus, David Sharpe, who appears in the documentary.

The remainder of the event will be a day of panel discussions as well as opportunities for artistic and cultural expression. We hope to inspire all attendees to see economic reconciliation as both a responsibility and an opportunity.

For full details, please visit <https://www.rbsconferencequeens.com>.

UPCOMING CHANGE TO THE QUEEN'S LAW PORTAL

The cake is a lie, but rumours of a Portal revamp are not – at some point within the next couple of weeks, the Portal link on the Queen's Law page will take you to a new page that looks something like this:

All your favourite portal content will still be there, but now accessible through links rather than menus. Some of it is a work in progress, so we appreciate your patience as we sort through a few rough edges.

DEMOCRACY IN ACTION (NOT DEMOCRACY INACTION)

The SGPS Election is being held today (Monday, January 28) and Tuesday (January 29). Don't forget to vote!

COMING SOON: FACEBOOK LIVESTREAMING

Attendees at the Jacob Turner talk on Friday may have noticed staff members Matt Shepherd and Mike Brean testing a new Facebook Live setup; you can review the talk here (<https://www.facebook.com/queensulaw/videos/293055751403112/>). The intent and hope is that we may have a rig that LSS-sanctioned clubs can use to livestream panels, etc. Details to come via the LSS VP Communications as they develop.
