

Queen's | LAW

Queen's Law is a leader in preparing law students for today's international environment. Studying and interning abroad provides students with the opportunity to develop cross-cultural competencies that are increasingly relevant in the legal system. Taking advantage of some of the wide array of international programs available to them equips Queen's students with highly transferable skills useful in the practice of law.

The benefits of international experience

- Enhance your future job applications
- Connect with international alumni
- Develop international networks
- Learn about international career options and paths
- Enjoy the experience of living and traveling abroad

Programs and Opportunities

International Law Programs at the BISC

The Faculty's unique International Law Programs, held each May and June at the Queen's Bader International Study Centre at Herstmonceux Castle in the U.K., are intensive and integrated academic programs in International Business Law and Public International Law.

International Exchanges

Queen's Law students have the opportunity to spend a term on exchange at one of our partner universities around the world.

Incoming Exchange Students

Queen's Law welcomes international students from universities around the world and the unique perspectives they bring to Queen's Law.

Internships

Students can gain experience and serving the public by working with not-for-profit and public-interest agencies in the summers after their first and second year.

International Moots

Queen's Law students have the opportunity to participate in international law moots, including the Philip C. Jessup International Law Moot, the Willem C. Vis International Arbitration Moot, and the ELSA Moot Court on WTO Law.
